

Iconic Locations of 5 Scary Movies Filmed in Los Angeles

Los Angeles is more than just Hollywood glitz; it's also home to some of horror's most iconic settings. These five terrifying films used real L.A. locations to bring their nightmares to life. Here are the movies and the places that made them unforgettable.

1. Halloween (1978)

Location: Myers House, South Pasadena, CA.

Why It's Scary: Michael Myers' childhood home is where the horror began. This quiet neighborhood stood in for Haddonfield, Illinois.

2. A Nightmare on Elm Street (1984)

Location: Nancy Thompson's House, Hollywood, CA.

Why It's Scary: Freddy Krueger's dream-stalking terror began here. The house is a real Dutch Colonial in the city of West Hollywood.

3. Drag Me to Hell (2009)

Location: Doheny Mansion, Mount Saint Mary's University, Los Angeles.

Why It's Scary: The Gothic mansion was the setting for the film's eerie séance scene.

4. Child's Play 2 (1990)

Location: Andy's Foster Home, South Pasadena, CA.

Why It's Scary: Chucky returns to terrorize Andy in this peaceful Craftsman-style home.

5. The Ring (2002)

Location: Katie's House, Hancock Park, Los Angeles.

Why It's Scary: The cursed videotape claims its first victim in this upscale L.A. home.

Los Angeles offers a hauntingly rich backdrop for film lovers. Check your streaming services to catch these and other scary movies leading up to Halloween. If you choose to seek out these locations, be respectful of private property.

The Grove Fall Festival

The Original Farmers Market at The Grove will celebrate its annual Fall Festival on Saturday October 18. The day will bring live music, seasonal bites, and a full lineup of autumn activities.

The market will be filled with a pumpkin patch, a petting zoo, and hands on craft stations spread throughout the plaza. Local restaurants and merchants will join in with festive dishes and sweet treats, and live performances will carry on from late morning through the evening.

It is an easy way to enjoy a bit of the season in the heart of Los Angeles. Admission is free and open to all. For more details and the full schedule, visit farmersmarketla.com.

Dia de Los Muertos, Nov. 1

Upcoming Events for October - November

October 18 - 19
The B-52s
Hollywood Bowl
Los Angeles, CA

October 18 - 19
Art Show
Beverly Gardens Park
Beverly Hills, CA

October 1 - November 9
Old World Oktoberfest
German Beer, Food & Bands
Huntington Beach, CA

October 1 - 30
Carved (carved pumpkin walk)
Descanso Gardens
La Cañada, CA

October 25
Boonion Station
Halloween pop-up
Union Station, LA, CA

November 1
Dia de los Muertos
Hollywood Forever
Los Angeles, CA

Oktoberfest, Oct. 1 - Nov. 9

Art Swagger Takes DTLA

Some of the bluespace team attended the event.

Los Angeles' design community turned the streets of Downtown into a living gallery for Art Swagger 2025, an annual art walk and fundraiser that blends creativity, community, and a touch of swagger.

Architecture and design firms across DTLA opened their doors to showcase installations from local artists, transforming office spaces into pop-up galleries for one unforgettable evening. The event wrapped with an after-party filled with live music, bold design talk, and the kind of energy that only happens when art meets purpose.

Proceeds from Art Swagger benefit Free Arts LA, supporting art programs for youth in underserved communities. It's proof that when the creative industry collaborates, art really can change lives, one paint stroke and one design sketch at a time.

Discover Fall Modernism Week in Palm Springs

As the desert air cools and the light softens, Palm Springs celebrates its heritage of midcentury design with Modernism Week, October 16–19, 2025. This four-day autumn "mini" festival of architecture, art, and modernist culture is an event well attended each year.

Over 50 curated events, from guided bus tours, home tours, and walking tours to lectures, cocktail gatherings, and immersive experiences.

Though smaller than its annual February run, the October edition offers a more relaxed, intimate atmosphere and is perfect for immersing yourself deeply in design without the peak crowds. Ticket proceeds support Modernism Week's nonprofit mission and local preservation efforts.

The event taps into a vibrant local design community offering opportunities to mingle with architects, collectors, and enthusiasts.

LA's Autumn Light

The featured palette captures the warm, cinematic feeling of fall in Los Angeles, where golden sunlight filters through palm silhouettes and deepens into rich, earthy hues. Inspired by LA's autumn light, the colors blend amber, rose, and terracotta with mid-century greens and muted browns for a nostalgic warmth. It's fall without the chill, where the season's beauty comes not from changing leaves but from the light itself shifting.

Earthbound - Groundcover Luum

Golden Hour - Forward Motion Luum

Dappled Sunlight - Geoglyph Luum

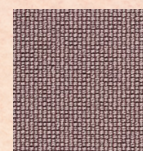

Mercurial Walnut Teknion

Premier - Nutmeg CF Stinson

Fern - Paint Hon

Ample - Radar Luum

Northern Ash Teknion